Message
Rector and Correspondent

Dear Parents,
Glad to pen few lines for this DBXpressions.

The first term of the academic year is almost over and the school life has become normal after pandemic lockdown. But we continue to be cautious of the virus and keep ourselves protected, especially our children.

One of the important rights of children is the right to participate. The school curriculum is developed in such a way that adequate space and opportunity is created for children to get involved in various curricular, co-curricular and extra-curricular activities. The principle of participation recognizes children as actors, not passive spectators, in their own lives and applies it at all times throughout their life. Keeping in this mind the school provides various opportunities to student leadership. The active participation of the Student Council Members and House Captains make great impact on the life of the school.

Everyone could observe how confidently our student leaders actively involved and organized various programmes of the first term. The participation doesn't stop only with leaders, but every child in the school. An active classroom with discussions, workshops and assignments are signs of realizing this right of children. Parents play a greater role in grooming their children with confidence and personal responsibility. They should be encouraged to participate in various responsibilities of the family fitting to their age. This will help them to build a confident career and a beautiful family with personal responsibility. Let us continue to encourage our children to participate and create space for the same, in the school and at home.

Fr. Ricopar Royan,
Rector

LET'S BE HUMAN

I want to narrate a significant experience that I had a few years back, which had a profound effect in my life. I visited a popular restaurant with a couple of friends to enjoy the food. But I got was more than just food, it was food for thought. The walls were well decorated and the aroma was just fantastic. But caught my attention was an exhortation that was hung on the wall. Please treat our waiters like HUMANS and they'll treat you like a KING. Ever since this statement has not left my mind.

It is said, we are human beings by default but Being Human is a choice that we have to make. Are we ready to make this choice? We all like to be treated as human beings. In turn we also need to treat others as humans keeping aside the caste, creed, religion and culture disparity.

Its only humans who have got the 6 senses but, in many circumstances, we tend to forget our human nature and implement the animal instincts. Worse is that our children learn from all us. They don't want to listen to our lectures instead they want to follow our actions, which teaches them a volume.

Once Buddha had a vision, in that vision he was taken to Heaven soon after his earthly life. He was given a solemn welcome in Heaven. The angels welcomed him and showed him the entire place. Suddenly Buddha thought of people here on earth. He was worried and wanted all the people to visit this wonderful and magnificent place. In fact, he cried out loud saying to himself that he needs to return back to earth to help the people to reach Heaven. As he thought his vision got vanished. And he continued to serve the humanity and advised everyone to become a better human person.

It is our moral responsibility dear parents and teachers to give our best to our wards. Not only best education, best school, best food and best of everything also treat them as BEST HUMAN BEING by our exemplary behaviour with our neighbours and whoever we come across in our daily lives. I am sure that will be a best gift we can handover to our next Generation.

Fr. Martin SDB
Principal
